Abstract

Education is a divine power that takes every country from darkness to light and every person from the abyss to the heights.

Keywords: the words of Otto von Bismarck, bitter truth, theory of X. Xorn, successful people, the power of knowledge, quality of education, dreams.

We all know that education is a force that develops the state and society. If see which country is developing, this is definitely due to the good quality of its education. Even if we look at the past, we are sure of this once again. Because education is a process that has not lost its power and will not lose it. His influence, his power always shakes a person. When talking about the past, I would like to mention the words of Otto von Bismarck, the first chancellor of the German Empire: “A country that spares money for schools spends its money on building prisons.” This is the bitter truth. You can see the proof of this even if you look at the current level of the countries of the world.

Professor Hermon. According to H. Horn, “education is a long-term adaptation process.” We cannot acquire education in a day, it requires a lot of time and great perseverance. We adapt to education first, and then master it. Yes, education is very important in our life. You cannot succeed in life without education. All successful people in today’s world are well-educated individuals. An educated person has a goal, a person with a goal gets an education. Nowadays, young people are looking for easy ways to get an education. They want to achieve the goal without difficulty. When they see a man climbing a rock, they think he was taken out by a helicopter, and they don’t even believe when the man on the rock says he climbed it himself. Maybe the present time has created this situation. However, I think it’s good that we young people face difficulties in getting an education. Because then the power of knowledge becomes more powerful.

Why do we need education? For the future.

Education is necessary to prevent corruption, unemployment, social illiteracy and environmental problems. Education gives us great opportunities. Because the standard of living of citizens largely depends on the level of education.

In his 1963 commentary on the economic value of education, Theodore Schultz reflected on the growing economicization of education: “The economic value of education depends largely on the supply and demand for schooling.” What does it mean? Since the main stage of education begins at school, school is given an economic value. How is this done?

Basically, parents give their requests and suggestions. That’s when school looks at education differently. After dividing the supply and demand, the quality of education will definitely improve. This, in turn, has an impact on the development of society.

At the end of the article, I would like to say that education is salvation, education is tomorrow, education is a bright future. Everyone has dreams and these dreams can be fulfilled only with quality education. I ask young people not to stop learning, to continue searching, and to those who are responsible for the quality of education, to be careful. After all, tomorrow is in the hands of the youth.
